

Lung Yingtai is a writer, literary critic and public intellectual. Lung not only has a large number of devoted readers in her native Taiwan, but her works also have great influence in the Chinese-language world in Hong Kong, China, and North America.

Lung entered public service as Taipei City Government's first minister of culture in 1999 and served as Taiwan's inaugural Minister of Culture from 2012-2014.

She is author of more than two dozen books, including essays, fiction, reportage, and literary criticism. Her 1985 book The Wild Fire created a major cultural stir for its honest and introspective look at the social and political problems facing contemporary Taiwan society.

Big River, Big Sea: Untold Stories of 1949, published in 2009, became a must-read in greater China despite the fact that it has been banned in China.

Lung Yingtai was Hung Leung Hao Ling Distinguished Fellow in Humanities at the University of Hong Kong from 2015-2020.
